THE FORBIDDEN LIBRARY

The Reading Order

One shelf, read in the order it happened.

These four pieces are not four subjects. They are one edit, carried out over sixteen centuries, and they read as one story when you take them in order. Start on the mountain. End at the sealed jar.

I. The Watchers Chart

Begin on Mount Hermon.

Two hundred descended and swore an oath on the summit. Semjaza led them, Azazel taught the forging of swords, and each one handed mankind a secret it was never meant to hold. Every name is here. This is where the record begins.

II. The Classified Case Files

Follow the knowledge down.

The arts the Watchers taught did not vanish. They are cut into the sites the record keeps quiet: Gobekli Tepe buried on purpose, the machined stone of Puma Punku, the objects filed in museum storage because they date wrong.

III. The Mystery Map Collection

Read what that knowledge left behind.

Coastlines drawn before anyone admits they were charted. Piri Reis, Oronteus Finaeus, Buache. The maps are the fingerprints of a knowledge the timeline cannot account for.

IV. The Hidden Canon

See who closed the door.

In 363 AD a council at Laodicea wrote down which books you were allowed to read. Fourteen went out, each one paired here with the council that cut it and the year. In 1945 a sealed jar at Nag Hammadi handed thirteen of them back.

Hermon to the forbidden arts, the arts to the evidence, the evidence to the edit. That is the thread. You are holding the whole of it, in the order they took it apart.

The record they edited.
